

Adeline Tan
(b. 1984) Singapore

Using the moniker Mightyyellow, Adeline Tan is an illustrator and a visual artist. She takes inspiration from her surroundings and popular culture. Her works are often a juxtaposition of elements pulled from her personal experiences and past memories.

Born and raised in a garden city with an ever-changing facade, Adeline's works revolves around her observations of what is left of our natural surroundings, our obsession with material possessions and its connection with our perceived hierarchy and society we live in.

Using botanical creatures as a metaphor, it is also a study of memories, relationships and roles within a family structure through the generations.

Her new series depicts the post-apocalyptic future where plants 'merged' with animals and mutated into beasts. These beasts came about from man's destruction to his environment and posed a challenge to humanity.

Adeline has been creating works for Adidas, Facebook, FormulaOne, Lululemon, Singapore Tourism Board (STB), Uniqlo and Hewlett Packard.
